If you have not seen Herbert Brennon's great historical eight-reel pro-duction. The Fall of the Romanoffs don't miss this last opportunity today it shows what was the cause of for it shows what was the cause of the Russian revolution and gives the spectator the inside facts of the downfall of the Russian monarchy. Its great strength is in its truth. With infinite pains Mr. Frennon has followed minutely every incident, every phase and every detail of the great drama as revealed to him by the monk filloder, a political refuge from Russia. Hieder, generally known as the of Hartford. It is expected that the sia. Blodor, generally known as the Russian Monk, is the former confident of Rasputin, upon whom rest the re-sponsibilities of the worst of the weak zar's crimes, his treachery, his disloyalty and his tyranny. Rasputin was the uncrowned monarch of Russia. The other feature on this bill is Jack wherein a Japanese servant makes the supreme sacrifice to save his white friend. Current Events with all the latest news completes the show.

DAVIS THEATRE NEXT WEEK. Admirers of "America's Sweetheart" Will Find Her Newest Vehicle One of Unusual Interest and Charm.

The legion of admirers of Mary Pickford will find her new Arteraft photoplay, How Could You, Jean? which comes to the Davis theatre on Monday, one of the best vehicles in which she has been seen since Rebec-ca of Sunnybrook Parm. This is a delightful story which emphasizes the

The story is an intensely huma-ene, and the staging of it is superior to mapy of the present day produc-tions. The stirring power of it has made it historic. In its new form its compelling interest is heightened.

New London County Fair. One of the favorite sports of the aviators of both the allies and the German forces is the shooting dewn of the captive balloons which are sent up by the artillery to observe the shelling of the guns and obtain any other knowledge. The aviator who is able to get where he can swoop down on the balloon, dashes down, firing through the balloon and the incendiary bullets set fire to the huge sames shaped gas bag. The observers in the basket, if not struck by any bullets, and the aviator is usually satisfied if he downs the balloon, leaps forth with his parachuse and selled.

At the New London County Fair singular solutions of the observer for Secretary Raymond has booked a balloon act quite out of the ordinary known as the Human Torpedo. The aeronaut ascends in his balloon with two parachutes: one parachute is enclosed in a large torpedo; on reaching the proper altitude the aeronaut jumps from the balloon with both parachutes. After the first 'chute opens there is a real explosion with a loud report that can be heard for miles and aeronaut and the second 'chute are hurled into space. Then the second 'chute opens and the intrepid aeronaut glides down to terra-firma.

Pve pledged myself unto the Flag, Although I may not bear a gun, I'll serve with harrow and with drag And bravely face the summer sun. I'll do my duty, day by day, I'll give my strength to tild the soil, And take my glory in the way. The harvest time shall bless my toil.

THE PERM

I'll give up play, and not complain,
I'll stand to hardships with a grin,
I'll stand to hardships with a grin,
I'll help to raise the stores of grain
Our Army sorely meets to win.
It is not given me 16-bs
A warrior bold in war's alarm,
But still the Figg shallown in me
A soldier serving on the farm.

I've pledged myself unto the Flag,
I will not whimper or complain,
Or let my stock of courage lag.
I'll brave the aummer sun and rain.
And when the golden sheaves are tied.
And victory at hast is won,
I, too, shall share, a solder's pride
And glory in a duty dong.

-Edgar A. Guest, in The American CONFESSION.

I like the man who flatters me.

I jove to hear him talk.

I wouldn't tell him for the world.

To go and take a walk!

The thicker he lays on the gush.

The happier I am.

I listen to his glowing words,

As silent as a clam.

love to hear his fulsome praise!

Do nanegyries pall?

Not when they are addressed to me,

O, dear no, not at all!

simply thrive on culdgy,

And glowing compliments

To me are only so much food

And drink, to all intents.

rever tire of applause.
For everything I do,
sust show that you think well of me
And I'll think well of you.
And flattering, you have no need
At all your words to pick;
it simply is impossible
To lay it on too thick!
